

Rheims is delivered at last from the fury of the Hun and is no longer under direct fire. This picture, taken Sept. 29, shows the famous Cathedral.

Copyright, Press Illustrating.

French troops in Macedonia entering the picturesque little village of Veyes, which had been held by the Bulgarians.

Copyright, International Film.

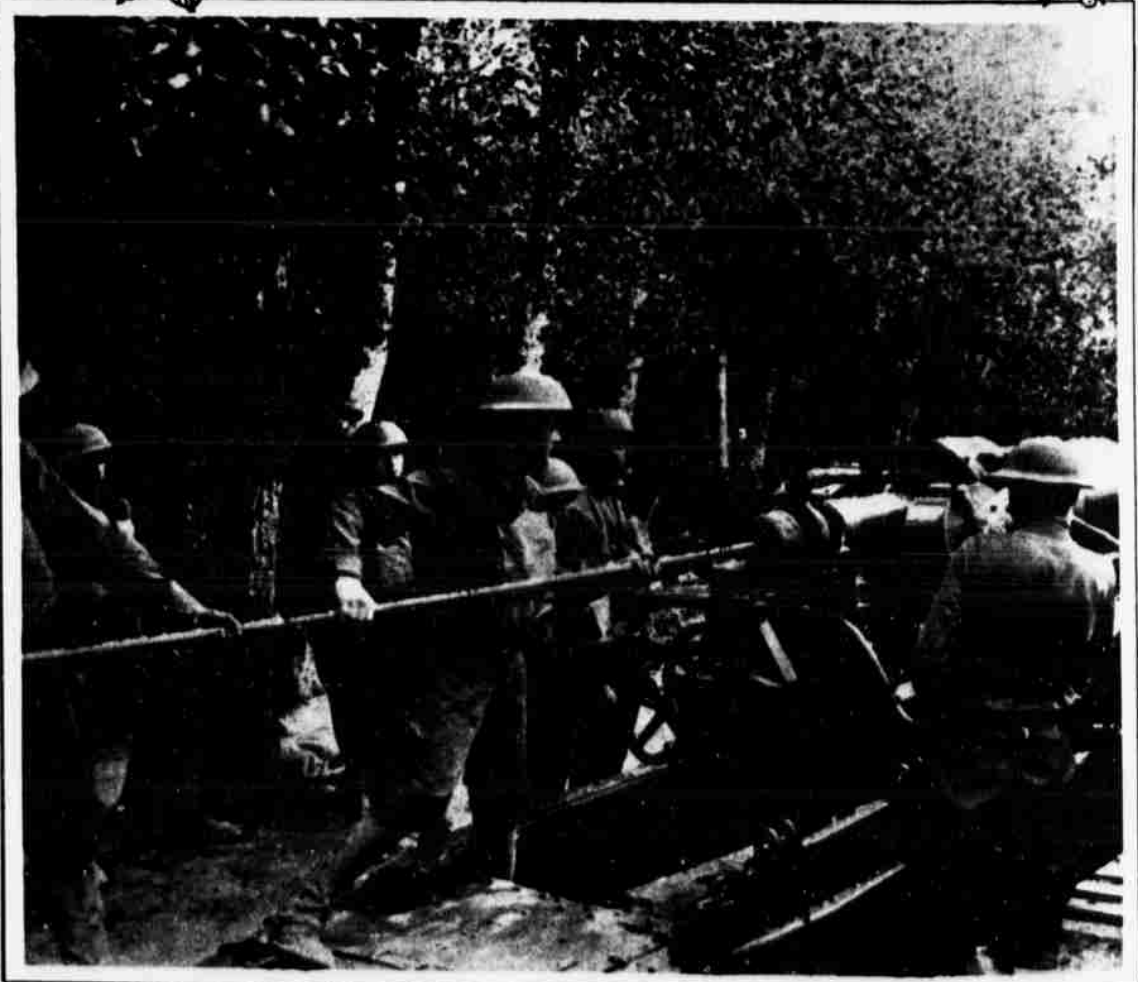

Next to destroyers the U-boats fear most the little submarine chasers which we are sending across in ever increasing quantity. Here one of them, consigned to the French Government, is being picked up by a mother ship to be towed over.

Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.

Enver Pasha, leader of the Young Turk party, and until recently virtually dictator of Turkey, out driving with Gen. Djeinal Pasha, another of the Young Turk faction. Enver is credited with bringing his country into the war at the behest of Germany.

Copyright, Central News Service.

American artillerymen charging a piece during the recent fighting. These Yanks have been grumbling because the Huns have been "advancing" toward the Rhine so fast that only cavalry can keep up with them. Consequently big guns haven't figured as much in the latest operations as they did for a time.

Copyright, French Pictorial.